

Blue Mountains

Greater Sydney Region, NSW · UNESCO World Heritage Area · ECO Destination Certified

The Greater Blue Mountains World Heritage Area sits within the Ngurra (Country) of the Dharug and Gundungurra peoples. Its ancient sandstone landscapes, deep gorges and remarkable eucalypt forests require care and respect from every visitor. Please follow these guidelines.

CLIFF SAFETY — CRITICAL

The Blue Mountains has unfenced cliff edges throughout, including at major lookouts. Multiple fatalities occur each year from falls. Never step over safety barriers for photographs. Always keep children within arm's reach near cliff edges.

DOS AND DON'TS

DO

- ☐ Acknowledge Dharug and Gundungurra Country on arrival
- ☐ Stay on marked tracks at all times
- ☐ Carry minimum 2 litres of water per person
- ☐ Wear sturdy, closed-toe footwear for all walks
- ☐ Check fire danger ratings before walking
- ☐ Tell someone your planned route and return time
- ☐ Visit the Gathering Place at Echo Point
- ☐ Use public transport — train from Sydney is ideal
- ☐ Take all rubbish out of the park
- ☐ Purchase from local and Indigenous-owned businesses

DO NOT

- ☐ Leave marked tracks — cliffs are unfenced
- ☐ Step over safety barriers for photographs
- ☐ Feed any wildlife — illegal and harmful
- ☐ Pick or remove any plants, flowers or fungi
- ☐ Light fires outside designated fireplace areas
- ☐ Enter the park during Total Fire Bans
- ☐ Camp outside designated campsites without a permit
- ☐ Bring cats or dogs into national park areas
- ☐ Walk alone in remote areas
- ☐ Ignore park closure signs — tracks close after rain

BUSHFIRE SAFETY

Check NSW RFS (rfs.nsw.gov.au) before every departure November–March. On days of Catastrophic fire danger, national parks close automatically. All guides must carry a first aid kit and charged mobile phone.

PROTECTED SPECIES

All plants, animals and fungi in the park are protected by law. Do not remove or disturb any native species. Do not feed currawongs, cockatoos or any other wildlife.

Please retain this document for the duration of your visit. Check nationalparks.nsw.gov.au and rfs.nsw.gov.au for current park status before departure.
