

VISITOR GUIDE · TRAVELLING RESPONSIBLY

Tasmania

We can't wait to welcome you to Tasmania. A few simple things will help you explore it safely, and help protect what makes it so special.

FOUR THINGS TO KNOW BEFORE YOU GO

01 Drive carefully at dawn, dusk and night, everywhere

Wildlife collisions are a leading cause of death for the endangered Tasmanian devil. Treat every rural road, especially around Cradle Mountain, Freycinet and the Tasman Peninsula, as active habitat.

02 Respect biosecurity at every entry point

Tasmania's strict rules on fresh produce, plants and soil protect an island ecosystem still free of several mainland pests and diseases.

03 Stay on marked tracks in the wilderness

Much of the Tasmanian Wilderness World Heritage Area is remote and fragile, holding both natural and 40,000-year-old Aboriginal cultural values.

04 Acknowledge palawa/pakana Country

The island's First Peoples have an unbroken 40,000-year connection here, through the last ice age. Use lutruwita place names alongside English where known.

PLEASE TAKE EXTRA CARE

Wildlife & weather. Never drive at dawn, dusk or night if avoidable, as collisions are a major cause of Tasmanian devil deaths. Check Tasmania Fire Service alerts before any remote or wilderness departure, year-round.

EXPLORING TASMANIA RESPONSIBLY

ENCOURAGE

- + Acknowledge palawa/pakana Country
- + Use lutruwita and other place names alongside English
- + Choose Aboriginal-led experiences where available
- + Drive cautiously at dawn, dusk and night
- + Declare all fresh produce and plants at biosecurity checkpoints
- + Stay on the Dove Lake boardwalk and other marked tracks
- + Pack layers for sudden weather changes
- + Check Tasmania Fire Service alerts before remote departures
- + Support small-group and certified wilderness operators

ADVISE AGAINST

- Speeding on rural roads at dawn, dusk or night
- Bringing undeclared fresh produce or plants
- Leaving marked tracks in wilderness areas
- Feeding any wildlife, including devils and quolls
- Trapping or relocating devils or quolls, as it's illegal
- Lighting fires outside designated areas in summer
- Climbing beyond barriers at Wineglass Bay or coastal lookouts
- Disturbing historical or cultural sites
- Ignoring track closure or fire-danger signage

PALAWA/PAKANA COUNTRY

lutruwita carries an unbroken 40,000-year Aboriginal story, including significant Pleistocene-era cultural sites. We'd encourage you to choose Aboriginal-led experiences such as the wukalina Walk or palawa kipli food experiences.
